Our Erasmus Mundus alumni Pamela Merrill Silva receives the Federico García Lorca 2024 prize

20/10/2025

We are happy to announce that our Erasmus Mundus alumni Pamela Merrill Silva has received the Federico García Lorca 2024 prize awarded by "La Madraza" Centre for Contemporary Culture of the UGR.

She received the prize under the narrative section for her novel "Líquido Amniótico" ("Amniotic fluid").

The other two students awarded with this recognition were Adianys González Herrera (poetry) and Guillermo Tomás Sánchez (dramatic text).

The presentation of the three awarded works took place last Friday October 17th at 7 pm in the "Salón de Caballeros XXIV" Conference Room of "La Madraza" Palace (Granada).

Miguel Carrera Garrido (Director of "La Madraza" Literature section), Mario de la Torre (Director of "La Madraza" Performing Arts section) and Mariana Lozano (Esdrújula Publishing house) also participated in the event. The three works are part
